Document Artifacts

- Uses Markdown, an easy-to-learn text format
- Common use cases include:
 - Brainstorming
 - Creating documentation
 - Drafting formal documents

Understanding Claude Artifacts

Claude Artifacts are a powerful feature that allows AI assistants like Claude to create and manage substantial, self-contained pieces of content during conversations. These artifacts are typically displayed in a separate UI window for clarity and ease of use.

What are Claude Artifacts?

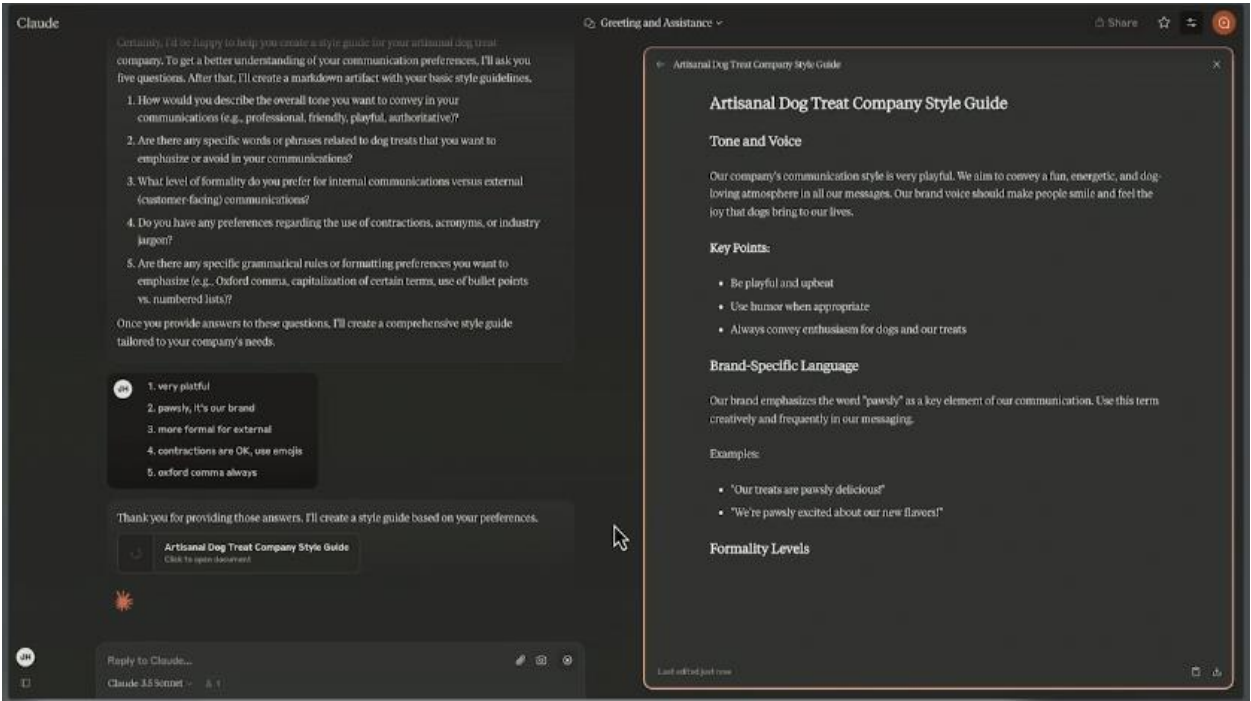

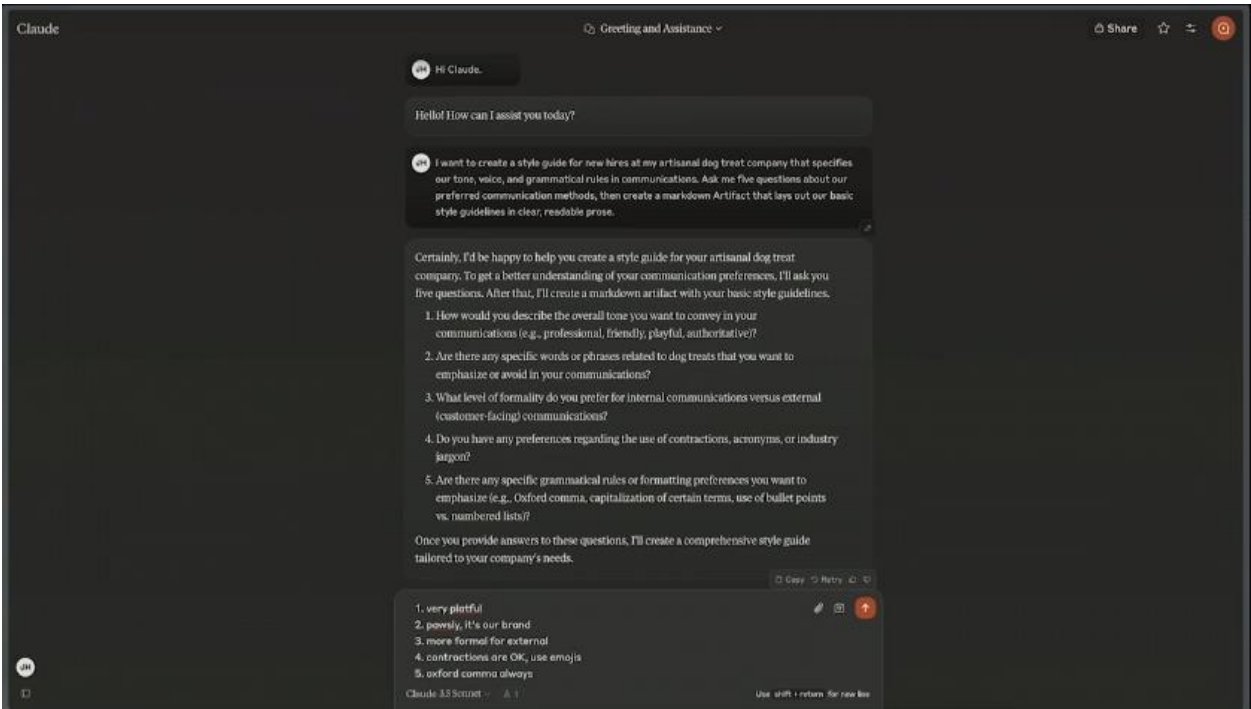

Claude Artifacts are:

- Substantial content (usually more than 15 lines)
- Self-contained pieces that can be understood without additional context
- Content that users might want to modify, iterate on, or take ownership of
- Information likely to be referenced or reused multiple times

When to Use Artifacts

Artifacts are ideal for:

1. Code snippets or scripts
2. Detailed documentation or reports
3. Complex diagrams or flowcharts
4. HTML content for web pages
5. SVG images
6. React components

empowerment or avoid in your communications?

3. What level of formality do you prefer for internal communications versus external (customer-facing) communications?

4. Do you have any preferences regarding the use of contractions, acronyms, or industry jargon?

5. Are there any specific grammatical rules or formatting preferences you want to emphasize (e.g., Oxford comma, capitalization of certain terms, use of bullet points vs. numbered lists)?

Once you provide answers to these questions, I'll create a comprehensive style guide tailored to your company's needs.

1. very playful

2. pawssy, it's our brand

3. more formal for external

4. contractions are OK, use emojis

5. oxford comma always

Thank you for providing those answers. I'll create a style guide based on your preferences.

Artisanal Dog Treat Company Style Guide

Click to open document

I've created a markdown artifact with a basic style guide for your artisanal dog treat company. This guide incorporates the playful tone you described, emphasizes your brand-specific language "pawssy," differentiates between internal and external communication styles, allows for contractions and emojis, and specifies the use of the Oxford comma.

Would you like me to explain or elaborate on any part of this style guide? Or would you like to make any adjustments or additions to it?

Artisanal Dog Treat Company Style Guide

Artisanal Dog Treat Company Style Guide

Tone and Voice

Our company's communication style is very playful. We aim to convey a fun, energetic, and dog-loving atmosphere in all our messages. Our brand voice should make people smile and feel the joy that dogs bring to our lives.

Key Points:

- Be playful and upbeat
- Use humor when appropriate
- Always convey enthusiasm for dogs and our treats

Brand-Specific Language

Our brand emphasizes the word "pawssy" as a key element of our communication. Use this term creatively and frequently in our messaging.

Examples

- "Our treats are pawssy delicious!"
- "We're pawssy excited about our new flavors!"

Formality Levels

Internal Communications

- Keep it casual and fun
- Use plenty of dog-related puns and jokes
